The Higher Diploma in Community and Primary Healthcare is a two-year full-time programme designed to equip students with essential knowledge and practical skills for careers in primary healthcare and community health services. It addresses Hong Kong's growing demand for professionals in District Health Centres (DHCs), NGOs, and other community-based healthcare settings, while providing a strong foundation for further studies in healthcare-related disciplines.

Students will participate in a three-week experiential study at a range of community healthcare settings, such as community pharmacies, NGOs, and primary healthcare institutions. This experiential study allows students to apply their theoretical knowledge and practical skills in real-world environments. Graduates may pursue nursing, public health, gerontology, and other healthcare-related degrees locally or overseas.
